Do you have the right profile keywords?

1. Think about the search strings your audience might be entering.
2. Look at other profiles for ideas by searching using the keywords in “1”.
3. Check out job postings to see what words and phrases the postings use.
4. Check out the LinkedIn company pages or websites of your target organizations.

Profile Completeness

The goal: to be an “All Star,” but shouldn’t stop there.

Additional Findability Tips

Make profile as public as possible (click “Settings and Privacy” then “Edit Public Profile”)

Change profile url so it’s user friendly:

- ✓ www.linkedin.com/in/roberthellmann is good,
- ✗ www.linkedin.com/pub/roberthellmannx133a0095d is not

Who to Connect With

First
Quality...
Then
Quantity

Quality Connections

- ✓ Know in some way & open to helping (maybe)
- ✓ Connection request from stranger & you want them in your network

If someone you don't know

Build a relationship – ask why they are reaching out

Example message (after “accept”): Hi Julie, I appreciate your request to connect (just accepted)! As I like to know everyone in my first degree network, I'm curious as to how you came across my profile and/or why you decided to reach out.

Connection Tips

Ignore unwanted requests
Include a personal message

Remove Connections

- If you have a large # of connections who you don't know
- If people search results are getting “clogged” with these unhelpful connections

Build your network quickly

If new to LinkedIn, stretch goal,
200 connections

- Import address book
- “People You May Know”
- Think broadly about network

THEN USE IT!

Finding People

- ✓ Advanced People Search
- ✓ www.linkedin.com/alumni
- ✓ Search a 1st degree's connections
- ✓ Where people went
- ✓ Companies
- ✓ Google + LinkedIn

Boolean Search

Title, Keyword or Company fields

Example for Title:

- (attorney OR gc OR counsel OR legal) NOT assistant
- marketing AND (senior OR VP OR executive OR Chief) NOT “senior manager”

(currently a six term limit in Boolean searches)

Finding People

- ✓ Advanced People Search
- ✓ Search a 1st degree's connections
- ✓ LinkedIn Alumni
- ✓ Companies
- ✓ Where people went

How to Contact People

- ✓ Email
- ✓ Groups
- ✓ InMail
- ✓ Request to Connect

Contacting People – Mistake...

You send an invite to connect to someone you don't know as the first outreach. The invite comes after.

Example “Direct Contact” Message

Elements of Success

- Personal/tailored
- Asked for just 20 minutes
- Mutually beneficial, value
- Powerful Pitch
- Not asking for a job
- No reference to a resume
- Call to action

A client sent a LinkedIn group message to someone she didn't know. This message resulted in a meeting and a referral for an interview.

Dear Claire,

Upon seeing your name in the AFP LinkedIn Group and noticing our additional shared connection, I thought I would reach out to you; I myself have many years of experience with marketing and fundraising.

I'm currently a VP of Marketing and Event Planning at GoodOrg. In the long run I am looking to transition outside of non-profits into a university such as Ivy. I would greatly appreciate 20 minutes of your time to gain your insight on how my experience might fit in a university setting (I'm not expecting an opening now). Given my many years of experience developing successful fundraising strategies and events, perhaps I could also share with you some ideas that you would find useful for Ivy's efforts.

Some background: As you can see from my profile, I have over 10 years of experience in fundraising and event planning that I believe could be useful to universities. Highlights include:

- Partnered with IT to identify most likely donors, resulting in a 37% increase in donations.
- Led a capital campaign last year that brought in $3 million and exceeded goals.
- Created partnerships with associations that provided new value to GoodOrg's community; these partnerships were credited with substantially increasing fundraising revenue.
- Planned and delivered a new event that was so successful that it has become an annual mainstay.

I would greatly value your insight regarding this hoped-for transition. Would you be available for a brief conversation, either in person or by phone?
